Commander's Corner

Ray Nichols, Post Commander

I want to start out by thanking everyone for your support and participation in all of our American legion events. Many times some of us cannot make a funeral or attend bingo. Everything still goes on due to the strong commitment by a lot of good people from our post. Keep up the good work it is wonderful to have so many very fine people participate in all of our events.

Now we have the fall attractions coming up. The Fall Festival parade, and chili dinner just to name a few. Make sure everyone who wishes to participate; come on out we always have a good time when we get together.

The presidential election is getting ever closer. Get out and support your choices and make sure all family members are registered to vote, and make sure they go vote. Learn all you can about the candidates and issues; remember with a computer research is only a click away. Be prepared for Election Day. As a person working at the poles; I really feel almost ill when some people show up and say I do not know how to vote! This happens all too often.

In closing bring someone with you to a meeting or an American Legion event. I enjoy the ride to every meeting with the 3 youngsters who ride with me every month. We have a great time riding together.

Hope to see all of you at the next American Legion event.

BEYOND THE PLASTIC

Rev. Donna Warren, Chaplain

Back in the nineteen seventies a little book was published, entitled Plastic Jesus. Many people at the time had plastic statues of Jesus held to the dashboards of their cars by a magnet.

Throughout the centuries Jesus has been fashioned in plastic, in marble, in wood and on canvas. All of these symbols have a purpose, but we need to be careful that we do not allow the symbols to pass for the real person. Carrying a family member's picture in one's wallet may be a way of reminding ourselves of the wonder and the warmth of that person, but it can never substitute for a relationship of that person. The person who can make a difference in our lives must become more important than a picture or a bouquet of flowers, and that takes work. Getting to know another person - even one who has been in our life for a long time - means we have to move out of ourselves.

Little children have a great way of making heroes real to themselves. They imagine that they are the hero and then they act out that hero. What would happen if we acted out this non-judgmental ways? What would happen if we responded to the needs around us, as He did? What would happen if we endorsed the non-violence He exemplified? What would happen if we adopted as our way of life the beatitudes that He proclaimed? Perhaps what would happen, would be that we would come to know Jesus at a level beyond the statues on the dashboard. We may come to know Him in a way that would be a reminder to our world of who He really was - and is. Perhaps we could offer evidence that we really believe that He is who we say He is.

General Vo Nguyen Giap

General Giap was a brilliant, highly respected leader of the North Vietnam military. The following quote is from his memoirs currently found in the Vietnam War memorial in Hanoi: 'What we still don't understand is why you Americans stopped the bombing of Hanoi. You had us on the ropes. If you had pressed us a little harder, just for another day or two, we were ready to surrender! It was the same at the battles of TET. You defeated us! We knew it, and we thought you knew it. But we were elated to notice your media was definitely helping us. They were causing more disruption in America than we could in the battlefields. We were ready to surrender. You had won!'

General Giap has published his memoirs and confirmed what most Americans knew. The Vietnam war was not lost in Vietnam -- it was lost at home. The exact same slippery slope, sponsored by the US Media, is currently well underway. It exposes the enormous power of a Biased Media to cut out the "heart and will" of the American public.

A truism worthy of note: ... Do not fear the enemy, for they can

Once they were Soldiers....
 You're an 18 or 19 year old kid. You're critically wounded, and dying in the jungle in the Ia Drang Valley, 11-14-1965. LZ Xray, Vietnam. Your Infantry Unit is outnumbered 8 - 1, and the enemy fire is so intense, from 100 or 200 yards away, that your own Infantry Commander has ordered the MediVac helicopters to stop coming in.

You're lying there, listening to the enemy machine guns, and you know you're not getting out. Your family is 1/2 way around the world, 12,000 miles away, and you'll never see them again. As the world starts to fade in and out, you know this is the day. Then, over the machine gun noise, you faintly hear that sound of a helicopter, and you look up to see a Huey, but it doesn't seem real, because no Medi-Vac markings are on it.

Ed Freeman is coming for you. He's not Medi-Vac, so it's not his job, but he's flying his Huey down into the machine gun fire, after the Medi-Vacs were ordered not to come. He's coming

Garbage Truck

One day I hopped into a taxi and we took off for the airport. We were driving in the right lane when suddenly a black car jumped out of a parking space right in front of us. My taxi driver slammed on his breaks, skidded, and missed the other car by just inches! The driver of the other car whipped his head around and started yelling at us. My taxi driver just smiled and waved at the guy. And I mean he was really friendly. So I asked, "Why did you just do that? This guy almost ruined your car and sent us to the hospital!" This is when my taxi driver taught me what I now call, "The Law of the Garbage Truck"

He explained that many people are like garbage trucks. They run around full of garbage, full of frustration, full of anger, and full of disappointment. As their garbage piles up, they need a place to dump it and sometimes they'll dump it on you. Don't take it personally. Just smile, wave, wish them well, and move on. Don't take their garbage and spread it to other people at work, at home, or on the streets. Don't let garbage trucks take over your day. Life's too short to wake up unit behind enemy lines during the Vietnam War, insisting it was real, that he was there, and lived through it. But before and after Robert Levy spoke in a federal courthouse in Camden on 25 JUL, U.S. District Judge Jerome Simandle cited evidence from prosecutors and Department of Veterans Affairs officials that it couldn't have happened, that Levy was making up important parts of it. Known as the "Missing Mayor" because he dropped out of sight for two weeks last fall, he admitted that he had lied about his Vietnam War service, embellishing it to include dangerous exploits with elite special operations forces in order to fatten his veterans' benefits check. The judge let Levy off without a prison term, although the disgraced former mayor will have to repay the $25,198 he wrongly got from the government, plus a $5,000 fine, and serve three years' probation.

Levy stepped down as mayor in October, after admitting his two-week absence was to attend a clinic for treatment of substance-abuse and mental-health issues. During yesterday's hearing, Simandle said Levy unquestionably suffers from post-traumatic stress disorder. The judge said Levy continues to exaggerate his military service, specifically by saying he did work for an elite pathfinder unit, which set up landing zones during the war and made other combat preparations in enemy-controlled territory. Levy insisted he had done several missions with the unit even though he was not a member of it. But Simandle noted that Veterans Affairs officials interviewed commanders and members of the special unit Levy claimed to have served with, and none remembered him. The judge said afterward that "there's no record and no recollection of his service [with the special unit] other than Mr. Levy's." Yet Levy insisted that he had helped the pathfinder unit from time to time. "Being young, 17 years old, I wanted to help and do whatever I could for my country," Levy said. "I just volunteered and went. There were no orders; I picked up my M-16 and my radio and went along. On occasion, they would ask me, and I said yes. I was 17 - young, strong and dumb."

Levy is now unemployed, without an income (the Veterans Benefits Administration has stripped him of all benefits, including those he had been receiving for physical injuries) and still dealing with mental health issues from the war. Simandle repeatedly praised Levy's service, which included two tours in Vietnam that left him with serious psychological ailments that went untreated for years. The judge said Levy continues having trouble determining what is real and what is not. Jacobs said Levy emerged from the war "with severe psychological wounds." Since leaving the Army in 1984, Levy has grappled with anxiety and depression, Jacobs said. Those problems worsened after the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks. The stress of running for and serving as mayor - he falsely claimed in campaign literature to have served with the Green Berets - also took its toll. "He couldn't function as mayor," the judge said. "All the other stuff was catching up to him. What he went through was a crisis. He didn't come out of it well."

Clarification

From John Kopp

Recently there has been some concern about seeing various people at the Democratic and Republican Conventions wearing their official American Legion Covers. So, I wrote a message to the National asking for some explanation and clarification of this matter. Here is the response I received:

John,

The American Legion is nonpartisan and nonpolitical in that The American Legion does not endorse or contribute to political candidates or political parties; however, that does not mean The American Legion is not actively engaged in either the electoral or legislative process.

The American Legion's presence at both the Democratic and Republican National Conventions were as guests and observers of the official proceedings. The American Legion presented testimony to both convention platform committees. This testimony is identical and based on resolutions adopted by its National Executive Committee.

Those selected by The American Legion National Commander to attend these national conventions do not wear political party badges, except for official credentials issued by the party to grant entrance and access to their national convention. They are not authorized to endorse any political candidate or party; however, are authorized to address official positions of The American Legion with convention delegates or the media covering the national convention.

All other Legionnaires attending political events as delegates, guests, or participants may wear The American Legion service cap; however, are not authorized to endorse any political candidate or party on behalf of The American Legion - but rather as a private citizen. For example, an American Legion color guard can post or retrieve colors as a part of the official convention program; a Legionnaire may lead the delegates and guests in reciting the Pledge; a Legionnaire could offer the invocation or benediction; or be a delegate or alternate; however, all should refrain from wearing any political buttons or pins on The American Legion service cap.

It is, however, permissible to render proper courtesy to guest speakers and elected officials. It is also permissible to show support for official positions of The American Legion.

The American Legion's "Get Out The Vote" is a national program that encourages voter registration, voter education, and voter participation. This program encourages nonpartisan voter registration efforts within local communities, to include at high schools, veterans homes, and even at American Legion post homes. Voter education promotes hosting nonpartisan veterans' town hall meeting and "Meet the Candidates Nights" by American Legion Posts. Voter participation encourages nonpartisan assistance with absentee voting and transporting voters to the polls. Wearing The American Legion service cap while voting can also a nonpartisan activity.

Many elected officials and candidates are Legionnaires and wear their American Legion service caps to special events and speaking engagements; however, they too must comply with the nonpartisan aspects of being a Legionnaire.

Wounded Warrior

DoD announced today that the Military One Source service has established a Wounded Warrior Resource Center telephone number and e-mail address for service members and their families, if they have concerns or other difficulties during their recovery process.

Service members and their family members can now call (800) 342-9647 or e-mail wwrc@militaryonesource.com 24/7 to request support.

Assistance provided by the resource center will not replace the specialized wounded warrior programs established by each of the military services, but it will offer another avenue of assistance for military facilities, health care services, and/or benefits information.

"The department is committed to aggressively addressing the needs of our service members and their families," said Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates.

Specially trained consultants will ensure consistent, quality customer-centric support. The consultants will identify the appropriate "warm hand-off" to either a military service or federal agency with authority to resolve the matter. The resource center consultant will maintain communication with the caller until the issue or concern is resolved.

"The term 'wounded warrior' encompasses the entire population of wounded, ill and injured service members and veterans," said Principal Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness Michael L. Dominguez.

The Wounded Warrior Resource Center meets the requirements of Section 1616 of the "National Defense Authorization Act Fiscal Year 2008" for a centralized number and ensures wounded families and caregivers have a number to call at any time.

A MILITARY STORY

From Donna Warren

The story is told of an inspection that took place at an Army Station. A full colonel was conducting the inspection and all was progressing smoothly until the colonel came to a man who, in the colonel's judgment, did not appear to be shipshape. The colonel looked the man up and down and then thundered, "Button that pocked, trooper!" The soldier, more than a little rattled, stammered, R-r-r-ght now, sir?" "Of course, right now!" roared the colonel in response. Where upon the soldier slowly and carefully reached out and buttoned the flap of the colonel's undone shirt pocket!

Letter to Post 95

July 10, 2008

Dear Sirs:

At 1430 on June 12th this year your post Honor Team provided military style graveside services for our father, Kenneth E. Schult at the Leavenworth National Cemetery. The team performed with precision, dignity and respect, as I know they have many times during the last years.

Our family was impressed and grateful for your voluntary service. We know that with so many families needing your services these days that it takes quite a commitment of your time, finances, and effort: from the honor detail to the flag folding to the making of the presented items (casings, cross, etc).

Our family would like to contribute a little to your organization as a way of saying thanks and to encourage or enable you to continue this good work. A check for $500 will be sent under separate cover to your PO Box (due to on line banking requirements).

The members of the family asked that I write the letter but all wish to have their names included. On behalf of Robert & Carol Schult, Jeffery & Tracy Schult, Jerry and Jeanine Hatenbower, Ethan & Shirley Sprague, Michael Shult, Melissa Schult, Allison Schult, Lauren Schult, Ian Schult, Karen Schult, Sean Schult, Heather Schult, Dane Hartenbower, and Derek Hartenbower we thank you for the ceremony, for thinking it important enough to volunteer for it.
